Sindoor Mittal: Powering India's green drive

Ms. Sindoor Mittal, Vice Chairperson, Avaada Group, is at the forefront of the global shift towards renewable energy. She is a core member of the leadership team at Avaada Group, India's leading energy transition company, championing the Net Zero Mission of the Government of India.

An alumna of Stanford Graduate School & ISB- Hyderabad, Ms. Mittal, is striving to build a sustainable world for the generations to come—a world that green energy solutions that Avaada promises will power.

Ms. Mittal's role at Avaada focuses on strategy, leadership development and fundraising. Avaada has had a marquee list of investors like ADB, DEG, FMO, Parparco and, most recently, the PTT Group from Thailand.

In her previous role as Director Welspun Energy, Ms Mittal drove the company's green energy agenda and spearheaded its solar business. She played a vital role in raising equity for the company and successfully handled the sale of the organization's ~1140 MW renewable portfolio to Tata Power.

Ms. Mittal is also keenly involved in the company's Corporate Social Responsibility endeavor, which focuses on educating girl child, environment-friendly practices and healthcare to the communities in which Avaada works. She relentlessly pursues the belief that India can speed up its growth by encouraging greater economic participation of women.

A well-known name in the industry, Ms. Mittal, is a keynote speaker in leading forums. She has addressed events like RE-INVEST, Economic Times' Global Business Summit, IFC's Climate Business Forum, among others. Ms. Mittal was conferred with the "AsiaOne Young Asian Entrepreneurs 2019-20" and the "Women Leader of the Year- 2018" award.
